We propose a new ordinance to give Omaha the authority to make its own alcohol licensing decisions through zoning restrictions to protect the quality of life throughout the City.

Why

The number of problem alcohol outlets has steadily increased across Omaha, contributing to community violence and blight.

Citizens feel powerless with no effective means to protect their homes and children or to reverse the downward spiral affecting their neighborhoods. The State system for issuing alcohol licenses and monitoring their operations is broken.

All decisions are currently made by the State Liquor Control Commission, which largely ignores input from Omaha residents while protecting the economic interest of the alcohol industry.
