NATIONAL NIGHT OUT 1990

National Night Out 1990 will take place Tuesday, August 7. This year's theme is "Neighborhood Support for Youth." Next to our families, the neighborhood is one of the biggest influences and resources in our lives.

Since the neighborhood is really an extension of our families, National Night Out 1990 recognizes it and calls upon it to play a vital role in the support of Omaha's young people. Young people need the kind of caring and sharing the neighborhood can provide. Neighbors can assist young people as they strive to take advantage of occupational and educational, recreational opportunities. Start planning neighborhood activities now for this year's night out!

The terms are negotiable with Creighton. No partial salvage would be allowed; in other words, the entire house must be moved intact from purpose of property for the relocating and reusing the house as a A11 other Creiahton residence. University requirements regarding removal and site condition would have to be complied with. Interested parties should contact Jim Willet, Creighton University, 280-3073.

VACATION TIME?

PROTECT YOUR HOME!

Vacations are wonderful, but usually everyone is ready to come home! Make sure your home is in the same condition as you left it, by remembering to follow a few simple rules:

- Stop newspaper and mail delivery or have someone responsible for picking up each day's deliveries.
- Have someone mow your lawn (or shovel your walk in the winter).
- 3. Purchase a light timer.
- Make sure all windows and doors are locked.
- 5. One of the best defenses a citizen has is to organize a Neighborhood Watch group in their area. To learn about Neighborhood Watch, an Organizer's Meeting is held the third Monday of a month at 7:00 p.m. at Police Headquarters, 505 S. 15th St.

I am concerned about a certain type of activity that has been taking place in Gifford Park. Specifically, I refer to the practice by some organizations of using the park as a place to "recruit" children for various programs. While there may be others using this technique, the groups that I am aware of are religious in nature.

I am opposed to this type of behavior for the following reasons:

- 1. While these organizations may have the best intentions, not all people who approach our children do. As parents, one of our major concerns is our children's safety. Children are repeatedly warned by parents, educators, and police about the dangers involved in being approached by "strangers". All too frequent news stories about child abuse, molestation, and abduction definitely lead us to believe that these warnings are valid. Representatives of organizations who approach children in the park or other public places, no matter how innocent their motivation, are enticing children to disregard rules that may someday be vital to their safety. Ironically, the fact that these people do NOT harm the children is in itself harmful, in that it conditions children to associate strangers approaching them in the park with safe and even fun activities. Again because of adverse conditioning, the use of the park is especially unsuitable for this type of recruitment or "ministry", since it is a documented fact that child molesters often frequent parks and playgrounds in search of their next victims.
- 2. This practice is being used to teach children specific religious beliefs and doctrines without the consent and knowledge of their parents. Many parents, myself for one, are strongly opposed to their children being exposed to and/or indoctrinated in religious beliefs that are not their own. There are proper times and places for religious training, and most parents want to be able to choose these for their children. Certainly we do not expect this to take place when we allow them to go to a public park to play.

I am writing this article with a dual purpose, the first being to alert neighborhood parents that this type of activity is taking place in our park, and secondly to ask the people who are involved in conducting these programs to please stop. If, as I believe, you have the well-being of our children and community at heart, there must surely be a way to plan your activities in a safer and more responsible manner.

LEGISLATIVE REPORT - SENATOR JOHN LINDSAY - DISTRICT NO. 9

Two items from this past session were of particular importance to the residents of the Ninth District. These were the state acquisition of Joslyn Castle and the protection and maintenance of services for the elderly.

Joslyn Castle lies in the heart of the District. It formerly housed the offices of the Omaha Public Schools. When OPS announced plans to move their offices to the newly renovated Tech High, speculation began as to the future of the Castle and its grounds. In order to preserve the historical integrity of the neighborhood and to retain the public access of the Castle, I worked with Sen. Ashford on a plan to allow the state to acquire the Castle and adapt it for public use. A year and a half of planning culminated with the passage of LB 164. Under the bill, $50,000 was appropriated to purchase the Castle and to provide for its management under the auspices of the State Historical Society. Future funds for the operation of the Castle will be solely from the private sector and should require no further government expenditure. This legislation was critical to preserve the Castle and its effect on the neighborhood.

The Ninth District contains one of the highest proportions of senior citizens in its population in the state. That is why I was concerned and disappointed when Gov. Orr vetoed funding from the mainline budget directed toward services for the elderly. For the seniors in my district this would have meant sharply curtailing services such as the Meals-on-Wheels program, in-home servicing, and other support services. Providing for the needs of the elderly is one of my top concerns in the Legislature, which is why I worked for and voted in favor of overriding the Governor's veto and restoring the needed funds into the budget.
